

Find a maximum matching in the bipartite graph below, using the network simplex algorithm in an augmented network, as described in class. Execute the algorithm in such a way that the three horizontal arcs are chosen first (even though these are bad choices). As you continue, you will see that the algorithm will correct those bad choices and end up with a matching of size four.

